Album Guide

Our album designer has created this guide as a great tool in helping you create an album to treasure forever.....

Choosing Your Images

You have now seen all your images so now all you have to do is choose your favourites, this sounds simple but there are many things to consider in your choices.

The layout of your album will flow from beginning to the end of your day, from bridal preparation till the wedding breakfast or dance depending on your chosen package, this is very important when selecting your images.

You have to choose 50 of your favourite images. Choose these through favourites on the website and send to photographer this way.

If you have a favourite image you would like as a cover please email us to let us know.

When choosing your images we want to guide you into creating the best representation of your day.

Things to think of, is what photos are either side of the one you are choosing as sometimes a random image can spoil the flow of the album. If the image doesn't go with the images around it, it can be difficult to place elsewhere an example of this would say be a baby sleeping in a pushchair in the middle of the ceremony images but as it was in church can only go in that part of the album or looks odd but then its takes away from the special moment of the ceremony if left there.

Also when choosing your images think about colour or black and white I personally prefer the page either all black and white or all colour so for example if the bridal prep you choose 3 colour 2 black and white they would be on the same page and sometimes doesn't work together so I would recommend where possible to try and select the same effect for those images I find the mens arrival shots work really well as Black and white again this is my personal choice. The ones of the bride & groom alone can be a mixture as the way they are placed is easier to make it flow.

You can also add words, ideas for this is the vows or promise, special quotes, the words to your first dance. This makes its more personalised to you, just email the words across to us, do get someone to check the spellings as we take it as you have sent it to us by copying and pasting as mistakes after printing cannot be rectified.

If you find it difficult to choose 50 images and want more in your album that is fine

You can add extra at an additional cost each additional image over 50 is £1 to add (a minimum of 5)
